

Committees Looking for Volunteers - Join a committee

Are you looking for a way to becoming involved through volunteering. Several key CCA committees are looking for volunteer to help guide the future of the organization and the actuarial profession. If you want to make a difference and giving back to the profession, consider applying to join one of the following committees:

Continuing Education Committee

The Continuing Education Committee plays a vital role in developing educational programs that help actuaries stay current with emerging trends and issues in the profession. Committee members work to identify relevant topics, collaborate with speakers, and assist with event planning. This is a great opportunity to contribute to the professional development of actuaries at all stages of their careers.

Communications Committee

This committee advises the Board on strategic opportunities and/or changes to the CCA's marketing and communications focus. Its goal is to increase the awareness of the CCA to drive membership recruitment and retention success. Its primary objectives are to review and provide guidance on the organization's social media strategies (Facebook, LinkedIn, Twitter, Instagram, YouTube), engage in actively promoting the CCA and its programs on social media, be subject matter experts for special projects, and curate content that may be repurposed and shared.

Professionalism Committee

The Professionalism Committee helps maintain and promote high ethical standards within the actuarial profession. Committee members contribute to discussions on industry best practices, assist in developing guidance on ethical issues, and develop the Professionalism Forum. If you're passionate about ethics and professionalism, this committee offers a rewarding opportunity to help shape standards.

Membership Committee

The Membership Committee focuses on growing and engaging the CCA's membership base. Members of this committee work to recruit new members, improve member retention, and ensure the association continues to meet the evolving needs of its community. If you're interested in fostering a vibrant actuarial network, this is the committee for you.

Commitment & Time Involved

Committees meet virtually approximately every 6 weeks and require about one hour of work between meetings. Your involvement will help ensure that the CCA continues to provide valuable programs and support for actuaries across the industry.

If you're interested in being considered for any of these committees or would like to learn more, please email Shannon Peterson. Your expertise and time can make a significant difference!
