Project ECHO Purpose:

The GA-DPH Palliative Care Project ECHO seeks to virtually bring palliative care experts to centers around Georgia. These monthly, virtual, tele-mentoring sessions focus on amplifying the capacity of local teams to provide best-practice primary palliative care to all regions of Georgia. Palliative care topics will be presented via didactic and case presentations to expand the knowledge base and skill set of physicians, Advance Practice Providers, nurses, social workers, chaplains, and other team members who work in hospital, community/ outpatient or home settings caring for children or adult patients with cancer or other serious illnesses. This includes primary care, pediatricians, internists, or family practitioners as well as oncology, cardiology, pulmonary, critical care, neurology, renal, surgery and palliative care/hospice interdisciplinary teams.

Project ECHO Objective:

The GA-DPH Palliative Care Project ECHO provides a community learning platform for health care providers in urban and rural Georgia. We strongly encourage primary care providers and teams caring for patients with serious illness to attend. This includes internists, family practitioners, and adult/pediatric subspecialists in oncology, cardiac, pulmonary, neurology, renal, surgery, and intensive care. We plan on reviewing the literature discussing priorities of general practitioner and subspecialist priorities for palliative care education and surveying the palliative care and education committee along with members from GHPCO. In addition, we will query the palliative workgroup for GC3 to assess needs and topics.
