Nadeem Khan, D.H.A.

Nadeem Khan is the Chief Medical Physicist at Oncology Hematology Care (OHC) in Cincinnati, OH. He has a Doctorate in Healthcare Administration and a Masters in Medical Physics. Dr. Khan sits on the OHC Leadership Management team and has Fellowships from the American College of Radiation Oncology and the American College of Medical Practice Executives amongst others.

Dr. Khan is certified by the American Board of Radiology holding certification in Therapeutic Medical Physics. He is also a Certified Health Financial Professional (CHFP) and holds a number of other certifications from health management associations. Additionally, he is licensed to practice medical physics in NY, FL & TX, and a Certified Radiation Expert in OH.

Auditing, accreditation and patient safety is close to Dr. Khan's heart. He also leads his group's RO-APM payment model discussions and the Lean Six Sigma strategy group. His passion lies in Global Healthcare, Health Insurance Plans, Strategic Change Management and Developing Executive Leadership.

Dr. Khan is a sought after speaker engaging in presentations and facilitating workshops on improving quality assurance, accreditation, transformative leadership development and efficient change management.

During this presentation, attendees will learn:

- Change is constant in healthcare and how can one lead through these changes.
- Change is all about perspective - why do certain change strategies fail while others are successful
- Healthcare is like other service industries - how can we incorporate some of their change strategies into healthcare.
